Industrial Education Association, BALTIMORE.

HISTORICAL SKETCH.

The Conference of Charities at its session April 16, 1887, adopted a resolution expressing the belief that "there is an industrial training which is neither technical nor professional, which is calculated to make better men and better citizens of our youth, no matter what calling they may afterwards follow, and which affects directly and in a most salutary manner their mind and character;" and appointed a committee consisting of Dr. Richard Grady, Chairman, and Messrs. F. D. Morrison, Otto Fuchs, Geo. P. Coler, Miss Helen J. Rowe and Col. Wm. Allan, ex-officio, to organize an Industrial Education Association whose objects are stated in the accompanying By-Laws.

In order to secure the co-operation of existing organizations engaged in any form of industrial training, and to become acquainted with the industrial methods pursued by them, a programme was arranged which embraced short addresses covering the work done in the several schools and institutions named from the point of view of those personally engaged in their management; and the committee invited all ladies and gentlemen wishing to become members of the Industrial Education Association, or friendly to its objects to attend a preliminary meeting in the hall of Johns Hopkins University, June 23, 1887, and listen to addresses on: Johns Hopkins University by Prof. Ira Remsen ; Industrial Education in the Public Schools by John T. Morris, Esq., President School Commissioners ; Maryland Institute for the promotion of the mechanic arts, by Mr. Jos. M. Cushing, President ; Maryland State Normal School (sewing and cooking,) by Prof. M. A. Newell, Principal ; Decorative Art Society, by Mrs. Henry Stockbridge, Secretary ; Friends' Gospel Mission, by Dr. James Carey Thomas ; House of Refuge, Joshua Levering, President ; St. Mary's Industrial School, Dr. R. H. Goldsmith, of Trustees ; Manual Labor School, Mr. Joseph Merrefield, Secretary ; Children's Aid Society, Mr. Wm. A. Wisong, Secretary. Verbatim reports of these papers were published in the Baltimore Sun of June 24, 1887. Prof. Ira Remsen of John Hopkins University presided at this meeting.

November 1, 1887, those who had been enrolled as members met in the hall of the Johns Hopkins University and, after listening to an address by Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, President of the New York Industrial Education Association on the history and work of that Association, and "a review of two years' work in the Boston Cooking Schools," by Miss Amy Morris Homans of that city, adopted By-Laws and elected a Board of Managers. President D. C. Gilman of Johns Hopkins University, presided at this meeting and made the opening address, which together with the other addresses is published in full in the Baltimore Sun of November 2, 1887.
